RABBI'S MESSAGE

Dear Chaveirim/Friends:

In a restaurant recently, the man eating alone at the table next to us leaned over and began talking about the upcoming presidential election, how he wasn't excited about Biden, and what did we think of Trump? I had no interest in getting into a political discussion while my food was getting cold, so it wasn't the right time to repeat to him my entire sermon from the first day of Rosh HaShanah. So I cut right to the chase:

The upcoming election has nothing to do with differences of opinion about any particular political issue. It has nothing to do with whether someone is a Democrat or Republican. The only issue at stake, the only thing that matters, is whether the United States will remain a democracy.

I told him that I've voted in elections in 5 different decades, and throughout that time, my candidate or issue has lost about 50% of the time. That's just the way it works. In a democracy, when you lose, you lick your wounds for a little while, then you get busy working and organizing to try for a different result the next time around.

For the first time in my life, though, I'm not worried about losing an election, but rather I'm afraid that we could lose our entire democratic system. Within the container of democracy, having different opinions is the American way. But what happens if the container itself, that which holds all those differences together, becomes broken?

This concern is not the product of esoteric Talmudic reasoning. It comes simply from seeing the actions and listening to the actual words being said.

In an alternative universe, the insurrection at the Capitol three years ago on January 6 would have presented a turning point. People who otherwise disagree about just about everything in terms of political positions would have stood together and made it clear that despite all of their differences, the preservation of democracy itself over-rides every other consideration. There would have been near-universal outrage about any attempt to attack democracy itself. Any public figure who supported the insurrection would have been voted out of office, if not turned out sooner for treason.

But that's not the universe we live in. As I asked on Rosh HaShanah, where is the universal outrage? How is it even possible that the insurrection on January 6 three years ago might turn out not to be the end of the anti-democratic efforts in the United States, but rather just the beginning of a successful effort, one that bears fruit in next November's election?

As I mentioned at Rosh HaShanah (though not to the man sitting at the table next to me at the restaurant), while this issue is critical for everyone who wants to continue living in a democracy, it's of an added level of concern for the Jewish community. In short, a decline in democracy has never throughout history been good for the Jews.

Synagogues, and rabbis in their official capacity, cannot endorse or oppose political candidates. But we can support issues, and discuss how those issues are informed by the teachings and history of our tradition. And so I pose the following question: which candidates in the upcoming primaries and November elections will strengthen democracy, and which ones will weaken it? It is a Jewish concern, always, to choose democracy.

Which brings me to the actual, quite practical, reason that prompted why I'm even talking about this concern at this time. The primary election in Pennsylvania this year just happens to fall on the first day of Passover. (And please note, this is in no way an act of antisemitism, but just a rather unfortunate oversight – partly the result of the fact that many Jews don't realize that it's a full chagl festival day – and it's simply too late to do anything about it now).

For many Jews, this presents a problem, even if not religiously, but at least just practically, if you're planning on being out of town for a seder or two. So I want to give you this heads-up with plenty of time to do something about it. It's simple: request a mail-in ballot. Just go to https://www.pavoterservices.pa.gov. Then, under "Voter Services," click on "Mail-In Ballot Application." To make it easier, we'll soon include the link in the weekly email newsletter that goes out every Thursday (and if you don't receive that email, contact Valerie in the office to get onto that distribution list – because you're missing out on information about a lot of things going on at CBJ).

Voting alone is not enough to preserve democracy. But it is the least that any eligible voter can do to participate in and to preserve our democratic institutions.

L'Shalom, Rabbi Jeff Sultar

FROM THE RABBI

I Look Forward to Talking with You!

I look forward to meeting with you to talk about, well, just about anything that might be on your mind.

While you can always leave this to chance by just dropping by CBJ, it's best to call or e-mail to set a time for us to meet. While it's wonderful when people just stop by, sometimes people are frustrated that I'm not available when they do so. The problem is that much of the time I'm at CBJ is already scheduled with meetings; also, I frequently have meetings and Pastoral requirements that take me out of the building; and finally, I usually spend one day a week (typically Thursday) working at home.

For these reasons, never hesitate during "normal" hours to call my cell phone, and please also call the cell number at any time for a lifecycle emergency or for any other truly pressing matter. I typically check e-mail at least a few times during the day, but please also know that I have a "dumb" phone and do not get e-mails instantly when away from the computer. I get texts just fine.

While I always prefer talking in person, one of e-mails' best features is that it's good for finding mutually-good times to meet.

So be in touch, and let's figure out a good time to talk!

L'Shalom,
Rabbi Jeff Sultar

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Come to CBJ...and Bring A Friend!

Judaism is a communal religion. We celebrate together, we mourn together, we worship together, we learn together, and we play together. The sages taught, for example, that you can't study Torah on your own. We need 10 Jewish adults - a minyan - in order to have a full prayer service. Likewise, while we may observe Shabbat, Chanukah, and Passover at home, it's a lot more fulfilling to come together on Friday nights in the sanctuary, to celebrate birthdays and anniversaries or to make latkes, or at the monthly Community Shabbat.

When we love something, we want to share it — so why not be inspired to bring our Jewish friends into the kehilla kedosha (holy community), embracing them within a wonderful, sacred congregation? We are not pushing membership on them, but rather inviting them into a loving community where they will be welcomed. Likewise, if they already are affiliated with a synagogue, that's fine, too. This isn't a zero-sum game; it's an opportunity to build connections between communities. Our doors are wide enough for everyone who wishes to enter.

Here are five specific ways you can include your friends – from work, your exercise class, the dog park, or wherever you meet them – in synagogue activities:

- 1-Shabbat worship: Invite a Jewish friend or family to join you at a Shabbat service this year. CBJ has a wide range of Friday night and Saturday morning services some for adults, some for families, some with a special speaker, some including Torah study. Pick one that appeals to you and bring a friend!
- 2-Food: Meals Especially Shabbat dinners are a wonderful way to share our synagogue with friends. Instead of meeting at a restaurant or eating at home, invite friends to a Community Shabbat to share a meal together. Nothing says "welcome"

- like sharing the Shabbat blessings and breaking bread together.
- 3-Adult education: CBJ-U programming and Rabbi Sultar's Adult Education classes on Sunday mornings or weekday evenings. Invite a friend or two to a class or lecture to nourish their soul (and yours) with engaging ideas and vibrant conversation.
- 4-Community celebrations: Invite a friend to join you at one of our Community activities or programs, introduce them to our community and kindle (or re-kindle) their interest in Jewish life. Perhaps there's a community shabbat that you enjoy attending, Pizza in the Hut, or our Purim Carnival or our special Sisterhood Shabbat. Shake that Iulav in the sukkah. Bring your friends; it's a beautiful way to introduce your friends to our community, and kindle (or re-kindle) the flame of Judaism.
- 5-Social Action (Tikkun Olam): Bring a friend for Social Action activities CBJ has partnered with the Jewish Relief Agency (JRA) to create a network for delivering groceries to housebound people in Phoenixville one Sunday a month. Also, participation in the Philadelphia Cares Winter Coat Drive, annual Mitzvah day includes cook ins, annual Red Cross blood drive, visiting nursing homes, CBJ grounds clean up and Mitzvah Food Pantry including a food drive throughout the High Holidays to name a few activities.

A WORD ABOUT YARTZEITS AT CBJ FROM RABBI SULTAR

All members of CBJ have the opportunity to record with the synagogue the dates of yartzeits (anniversaries of the death) of people we love and want to remember.

Once CBJ has those dates, a reminder is sent out each year several weeks before the yartzeit. The name of the person being remembered is then read out loud on the Shabbat of or immediately preceding the yartzeit. Many people make an extra effort to attend the Friday evening or Shabbat morning service when the name is read, in order to say the Mourners Kaddish. Please know that these names are read out loud and Kaddish is said for them whether you're there or not. It is of course better when the person actually saying Kaddish is present. (We also read out loud each Shabbat the name of members and their family who have died for the entire 30 day (shloshim) period following the day of burial).

Some of our members prefer to say Kaddish on the actual day of the yartzeit. CBJ will always make every effort to make sure that there is a minyan at CBJ on the appropriate day so that this can happen (those services are usually scheduled for 7:00 PM). All you need to do is to contact Sandy Stone, whose email address is sbs1949@verizon.net, and cell phone is (484) 744-3266. Of course, it always helps to invite friends and family, and to give Sandy a sense of how many more people will be needed to reach the number of 10 Jewish adults.

Saying Kaddish is one of three ways that yartzeits are observed. Another is to light a 24 hour memorial candle in the evening when the yartzeit begins (keep in mind that Jewish days start the evening before the day). And the third is go give tzedakah specifically in memory of the person who has died, to continue to bring goodness into the world in their name, when they are no longer directly able to do so themselves. Many people choose to make a donation to their desired fund at CBJ for this purpose. And while we greatly appreciate these donations, the key thing is to give tzedakah, whether it's to CBJ or to some other organization close to the heart of the person you're remembering, or meaningful to you.

SISTERHOOD FUNERAL LUNCHEONS

We have said for years Sisterhood is the heart of CBJ. With the loss of my father Dr. Harold Veloric last week, I saw Sisterhood heart and support in action. Diane Liss, our Funeral Luncheon Coordinator, took the weight of lunch after the funeral and organized the food for our shiva. After one phone call with Diane, I knew we were in good hands. Behind the scenes, Diane found Sisterhood volunteers who made food and desserts and also made sure we had paper goods, coffee, ice and everything we needed to be ready for family and friends.

The day of the funeral Diane and other Sisterhood members came to our house while we were at the funeral. Joining her was Adrienne Burns, Becca Boylan, and Kat Ludwig (who took off work and came on her birthday.) We came home from the funeral to hot coffee and lunch on a wet grey day. What a lovely way to take care of sad people in mourning.

I hope that you will join us to take part in this important mitzvah Sisterhood offers to our CBJ families. Or, if you have not yet helped, please let Diane know to add you to her list of people to cook, buy needed items or help at the member's house. Dianeliss@comcast.net

When Diane calls and asks for help, please say yes to help Sisterhood to continue this mitzvah. Thank you to everyone who helped with our sadness, assisted in the past and helps in the future.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOL

SPONSOR AN ONEG

School activities continue including one that everyone can participate. The JRA program gives our students the opportunity to pack food boxes for those in need in our community. Tasks are assigned to each age group as appropriate: The middle grades carry boxes through an assembly-line process putting the assigned items in each box; then our youngest students add fruits and vegetables to each assembled box; and our oldest shelp each box outside to the driveway to be loaded into cars for delivery. Thanks to Lisa and Jeff Anton and Ruth Yeiser for their patience for giving our students this opportunity!

Have something to celebrate?

Come celebrate with your CBJ family by sponsoring an Oneg on Friday nights and/or a Kiddush snack on Saturdays after services. We make it easy - contact Adrienne at 484-318-3385 (cell) or burnsao@gmail.com for details.

MEET OUR MEMBERS

As an initiative of Team Engage, we are sharing interviews with CBJ members to promote engagement within the congregation.

Meet Amy Siegel and Eric Miller – for Team Engage by Ellie Cantor

Anyone who has spent any time around CBJ surely knows Eric Miller and Amy Siegel and their children, Reggie and Will. Eric is originally from Great Neck, NY. He went to Penn for college (Amy's father's alma mater) and spent his career in insurance, investment, and financial services marketing, both in New York and Philadelphia. He is now happily retired. Amy is a practicing pediatrician with Penn Medicine in Limerick. She grew up in Lansdale and did her medical education at Hahnemann (now Drexel) in Philadelphia (her father's med school alma mater).

Eric and Amy moved to this area in 1990. Having a local conservative synagogue within walking distance of their home was a major factor in their decision as to where she would practice. CBJ filled the bill.

They quickly became actively involved at CBJ, beginning with their recruitment by Hal Katz as youth advisors, which provided them with a voice on the board in advance of their moving up to leadership rolls. Amy is a past treasurer of Sisterhood, and Eric served as CBJ's president in 1998-1999. He now chairs the Trustees and is head of the High Holy Day Committee.

They both confirm that CBJ was a good choice for them due to the friendly, warm, caring nature of the shul, the strong sense of community, and the warm welcomes for everyone.

In her spare time, Amy loves to cook (and Eric loves to eat), and both Eric and Amy enjoy reading and travel.

In answer to the most important question – what is your favorite Jewish soul food? – Eric said, "yes!" (Those of us who know him, even a little, will recognize his very special sense of humor in that response.) He then qualified it by putting Amy's brisket at the top of the list. Amy said kugel, chicken soup, and rugalach are favorites for her, but no chopped liver, please.

You can find Eric, and very often Amy, at our Friday night and Saturday morning Shabbat services welcoming our congregants and guests. Make sure to say hello!

Does a Golem Count in a Minyan?

(And Other 21st Century Implications of an Ancient Legend)

Adult Education with Rabbi Sultar

"Who can say he knows anything about the Golem? ...Always they treat it as a legend, till somethings happens and turns it into actuality again. After which it's talked of for many a day."

- Gustav Meyrink, in his 1915 novel The Golem

The golem – an artificial person created by mystical and magical means – has taken many different forms throughout Jewish history. In the coming year, we'll explore together the earliest recorded citings/sightings of the golem, and how the legend(s) evolved right up into the 20th century. We'll consider how the golem has served as an ever-changing metaphor for the most pressing issues of each generation. And because the Rabbis of old believed the golem existed – whether it actually did or not – they asked halachic/Jewish legal questions that now provide us with a Jewish perspective on today's and tomorrow's headlines, as we stand on the verge of possibly creating the first-ever actual golems in the history of the world.

Saturday, March 2 7:30 PM

A LAND THAT'S FREE FOR YOU AND ME:

Jewish Songwriters Give Universal Voice To The American Dream

Fred Miller combines his voice, keyboard skills, and encyclopedic musical knowledge to present a fascinating look at how the Jewish immigrant experience gave rise to the "Golden Age of American Popular Music."

Legendary composers such as Rodgers and Hammerstein, George and Ira Gershwin, Jerome Kern, Harold Arlen, and Irving Berlin were all sons of Jewish immigrants, and they infused their songs with the hopes and dreams of their ancestors, creating such enduring classics as Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?, Oh. What a Beautiful Mornin', I Got Rhythm, Summertime, Someone to Watch Over Me, Ol' Man River, It's Only a Paper Moon, Some Enchanted Evening, You'll Never Walk Alone, Blue Skies, What'll I Do?, Cheek to Cheek, Puttin' On the Ritz, There's No Business Like Show Business, God Bless America, and Over the Rainbow.

"Somewhere over the rainbow, Way up high, There's a land that I heard of Once in a lullaby..."

THE TREE OF LIFE

In Judaism, the "Tree of Life" often symbolizes the wisdom of the Torah. In Proverbs it says: "Its ways are ways of pleasantness, and all its paths are peace. It is a tree of life for those who grasp it, and those who draw near it are fortunate." Laws and customs connected with trees permeate the Bible and Talmud, providing an ethical basis underlying human relationships (tithing and charity) and the environment (ecology).

We have a beautiful Tree of life sculpture as you enter our main lobby on the right hand wall. Stop a minute next time you are in the building and look at the names and memories permanently ensconced there- most are happy memories- milestone events like b'nai mitzvahs, marriages and appreciations for life-long friends.

You will see momentous occasions like 25th and 50th wedding anniversaries and 80th or "special" birthdays commemorated on the tree. Other leaves document continuity celebrations for our congregation like births of grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Testimonials of generous service to our congregation and other individuals are written in its' boughs.

It tells a story of a community- our community- one we can celebrate and continue to tell going forward.

This is a great time to purchase one and add to our legacy. Let this Tree of Life bring our congregation both physical and spiritual sustenance for the years to come.

To purchase a leaf, contact Carol Actor (cffactor@verizon.net). Leaves are $150 each.
